PUTTING LEADERSHIP TO WORK

THE CITADEL

“I have found that day after day, there is no better feeling than being able to say, ‘I’m a Citadel Cadet.’ Whether it is the leadership training and experience that I have received since day one, the sense of pride I get when I button up my uniform, or the knowledge that I and those around me are honorable people, there is little in life that could top being a member of this distinguished family.”

Jon Paris

Cadet Major

Regimental Recruiting Officer

Class of 2005

Graduates of The Citadel succeed because they know what it takes to meet a challenge in any field — patience and persistence, discipline and determination, teamwork and hard work. They know how to lead and how to follow. Where others see problems, they see possibilities; when others stand back, they stand tall. They advance the goals of any organization they serve. They are stubborn. They are doers. They are Bulldogs.
